Blini.

To your average westerner, Russian cuisine is undoubtedly associated with either alcoholic beverages or soups (with ridiculous names). To you, the average reader, who has never attempted to pronounce the words "borscht" or "schii", both very popular Russian stews by the way I, yours truly, am willing to pitch you my personal favorite, blini.

Now visualize a pancake for me. You got this puffy, creamy delicious-looking treat topped with maple syrup, mint, and blueberries, right? Well, forget all that. A blin, the most beloved dish in my family, is flat, borderline crispy, and does not contain sugar. Now I know what you're thinking: "Why are your pancakes like this?" Well, you're the one who came to me for Russian cuisine, not vice-versa. If you want something more exotic, come on over and ~~get~~ order some meat dumplings. You can get them by asking for "pelmeni". Oh, that's right, you won't. You don't exist. They asked for a "short description", but made me write 226 words! Ridiculous! Did I mention that I like blini already?

To wrap things up: although plain and simple blini are an amazing treat that works well with Nutella, jam, peanut butter, and whatever your heart desires. It really hope you can get here and try it all for yourself.

In my family traditional dish is blinchi. It is like pancakes but thinner. Blinchi can be served with different <sup>sp</sup> fillings. For example, ~~the~~ smetana, meat, jam, honey or caviar. We also have <sup>sp</sup> special holiday ~~for~~ when we eat blinchi for whole week. <sup>lex</sup> <sup>gr</sup> It calls Maslenitsa. For all seven days ~~we~~ people eat this dish and <sup>lex</sup> treat it for neighbours and friends.

If you come to Russia, you should try one really tasty <sup>gr</sup> soup. It calls Uha. Uha is made from cabbage, potato, <sup>lex</sup> carrot and the most ~~important~~ <sup>important</sup> ingredient is fish. <sup>the</sup> broth of this soup is made from fish. Fish for this soup can be of different types. This soup people love cook <sup>gr</sup> when they are on fishing. They catch fish and immediately prepare a dish from it. This soup is so tasty, filling and unusual. You really need to try it!

Russia is <sup>the</sup> huge country and it ~~have~~ has different regions, each of them has its own traditional dishes. I recommend trying as many of these dishes as possible
